

A teacher is a great profession

I think a teacher is a good profession at all, but also it has the bad sides

At first, it is a good profession and it is very well when there is a person, who can teach a lot of things! It is also good for the teacher himself in terms of social development, since he or she always communicates with students. Also, if there were no teacher in the world, we would find it very difficult to self-study.

But all the good things have their own cons. Very often many teachers waste their nerves on naughty students, do a lot of work, while earning very little. It is not good for them because it looks like they are working for nothing. Many teachers also do not even receive due gratitude from the students for what they have done for them. This is so sad, because teachers always try to teach us everything.

So, in conclusion I can say that a teacher is a good profession for those who can withstand such a burden and who loves to work with students. And I can also say that teachers are very strong and will always achieve what they want.
